Salary: £70-£75k per annum.

Reports to: Director of Fundraising.

Job Purpose

This role will lead our local fundraising operation, ensuring we maximise the value from our local relationships. The primary focus of this role is to maximise the net contribution from local fundraising but it will also drive community awareness and engagement with Marie Curie. With all local relationships managed by your teams you will be able to ensure supporter have a connected, seamless experience. And ensure we maximise the value of each supporter. You will also ensure that you connect with Retail, Local comms team and local Caring services and Policy teams.

We have ambitious financial growth targets and need to drive net contribution, engagement and awareness if we are to achieve our fundraising ambitions and thus our service growth goals. Managing a team of over 100 people and having responsibility for over £20 million Income, the recruitment of legacy prospects, the delivery of our fundraising events and the strategic approach of supporter facing volunteers, this is a key role for Marie Curie.

Marie Curie's Place based approach is key to it meeting its Caring service and Policy goals. This role will ensure that local supporters have an incredible, aligned experience. That supporters feel they are dealing with one organisation and want to maximise the contribution they can make. Internally the role will make sure that there is one aligned plan for local fundraising, that we are able to maximise the return from our fundraising efforts and work seamlessly across the organisation.

The role will lead and co-ordinate all fundraising that involves local relationships, ensuring there is an aligned plan, that prioritises key activities, ensures a coordinated approach with other teams working in the local space – including other fundraising teams, Caring services, Business development, Retail, Mar Comms etc. The Fundraising teams based in communities across the UK are responsible for raising money, driving Legacy sign ups, building event participation and profit and growing awareness and engagement of the need for and impact of our work amongst supporters and people who have the potential to support to Marie Curie.

The team works as part of a wider Income, Innovation and Engagement directorate to grow income and strengthen our voice across the UK, as the leading end of life care charity in the UK.

Working in close collaboration with colleagues across Fundraising, Marketing, Communications, Policy, Public Affairs and Caring Services, the team will develop and implement plans to optimise opportunities to recruit, develop and retain supporters for Marie Curie.

As Marie Curie aims to shift towards building integrated place-based end of life services, the fundraising teams will work closely with regionally based colleagues across the organisation to optimise local knowledge, presence, relationships and impact.
